Overall, I think this is one of the better experiences I've had thus far working with a group. Everyone attends meetings, everyone communicates pretty well and getting everyone together in-person twice a week wasn't pulling hair for once as it has been for me in other classes in the past. I was one of the group members that was basically a complete stranger to the languages we used (html/css/js) as well as the frameworks that we chose to use (reactjs/react bootstrap/etc). Although the commits have to be pushed by an individual, almost everything was done together due to almost the entirety of Plaza being written in person as a group on a single monitor. I like to think that my CSS knowledge has improved immensely and my react/js knowledge has improved moderately. I found react to be harder to understand but is something I'll continue to work on over the summer. I also attempted to work with react bootstrap on my own regarding the navbar which the group initially approved to merge but was later chosen to revert after deciding to stay with vanilla reactjs.

Programming languages used in this repository

Measured in bytes of code. Excludes generated and vendored code.

(N.B. <https://git.linux.iastate.edu/users/jcobb/activity>)

As said in past reports almost all of the code was collaborated on in person so commits are kind of inaccurate but one of the things that I did work on by myself outside of meetings did not end up getting merged. I didn't press the issue as it was kind of glossed over but I will post my final branch as opposed to the final branch that will be presented.
